Liberty Hill, a scenic little town in the heart of Texas Hill Country, is a charming town of upscale neighborhoods, all of which center around the downtown district. In conjunction with these modern developments, the city has maintained its classic aura. This is largely due to its prime attraction: the International Sculpture Park. The garden houses exemplary work from international sculptors and the famous Mel Fowler.

Liberty Hill also offers quick access to Lake Travis, a massive body of water — great for boating, fishing, or just relaxing by the shore.

The quaint town is also less than an hour's drive from Austin. Residents who visit the capital city can enjoy an abundance of live music, great food, and world-class shopping experiences.

Those interested in staying a little closer to home can still enjoy some good eats. Liberty Hill is home to places like Major's Burger Company, Dahlia Café, Malted Grains, and Hobo Junction.
