The Domain is one of Austin's most densely populated areas, while also saturated with retail businesses and office space.

The area now known as “The Domain” is a relatively new community in Austin. This residential and business hub can trace its history back to 1999 when Endeavor Real Estate Group purchased 303 acres from IBM and Multech. Though Endeavor Real Estate's original plans for the property fell flat, which led them to partner with Simon Property Group in 2003. This new partnership got off to an excellent start. The two entities were able to start developing the first phase of The Domain by 2004.

Since its development, The Domain has become a premier destination in the heart of Austin. Tens of thousands of shoppers visit The Domain every single year.

The Domain contains numerous retail stores, local, national and international. The shopping center also has several children's play areas and, of course, dining opportunities.

In terms of eateries, The Domain has a little bit of everything. Those seeking a more casual eating experience can visit

Coffee+Crisp, Beard Papa's, or California Pizza Kitchen. In terms of fine dining, The Domain offers options like Fleming's Prime Steakhouse & Wine Bar and Cru.

The Domain also boasts several entertainment options. In addition to the aforementioned children's play areas, The Domain hosts businesses like Mystery Room, Punch Bowl Social, and iPic Theaters.

Austinites in the area can easily venture out to check out neighboring parks, visit Lake Austin, or explore various historical sites.
