Mueller is an urban community located in east-central Austin and is becoming one of the most sought-after areas in the city. Mueller is unique as an urban space and is part of a massive redevelopment project built where the Robert Mueller Municipal Airport once stood.

The design and architecture team responsible for planning the community placed a heavy emphasis on sustainability. Additionally, Mueller was created to be “pedestrian-friendly.” This design intent is evidenced by Mueller’s abundance of sidewalks and walkways.

While the community is still being developed, the project leaders plan to have more than 40 different eateries in Mueller. This array of establishments will include everything from high-end restaurants to casual pubs and sports bars. A few notable eateries that have already opened include Halcyon, Torchy’s Tacos, and Colleen’s Kitchen.

In addition to offering plenty of dining opportunities, Mueller has more than its fair share of retail businesses. Additionally, the Texas Farmers Market is held every Sunday in Mueller Park. Other shopping venues include Toy Dojo, Hope Family Thrift, and Lilla and Beth.

As part of their efforts to make Mueller a modern, health-oriented community, project planners also worked with various businesses to provide residents with an abundance of wellness amenities. Mueller is home to OrangeTheory Fitness, StretchLab Mueller, Restore Hyper Wellness, Vio Med Spa, One Medical, and TrainLifeFit.

If residents run out of things to do in Mueller — which is unlikely — they can easily explore the rest of Austin. The Texas State Capitol, Barton Springs Pool, LBJ Presidential Library, and the Austin Aquarium are excellent places to start.
