Though residents of Steiner Ranch have Austin city addresses, the area is census-designated, which means that the United States Census Bureau calculates the population of the community separate from that of Austin. However, Steiner Ranch is bordered by Austin city limits on all sides.

The community of Steiner Ranch consists primarily of modern homes, many of which were designed by well-known central Texas builders.

In addition to its close proximity to downtown Austin, Steiner Ranch is also located just south of Lake Travis, one of the premier water recreation locations in the state. Lake Travis offers fine dining, relaxed eating opportunities, water-based recreational activities, boat rentals, and much more.

However, Steiner Ranch residents do not have to venture outside of their community in order to enjoy recreational opportunities or fine dining. The Steiner Ranch Steakhouse offers a premium eating experience.

Residents of Steiner Ranch also have the opportunity to enjoy The University of Texas Golf Club. This prestigious club offers much more than just 18 holes of beautifully maintained green. It also has a 16,000-square-foot clubhouse, a fitness facility, several pools, and tennis courts. The club regularly hosts family nights and other community events that are available exclusively to members.

West Austin communities such as Steiner Ranch are served by the West Austin Chamber of Commerce, formerly known as the Four Points Chamber of Commerce. However, the group changed its name in 2016 and also expanded its scope of activities. These actions were taken in response to the massive growth the West Austin area has experienced over the last 10 years.
