Tarrytown is a well-known neighborhood located just west of downtown Austin. The community is bordered by the Mopac Expressway to the east and Lake Austin to the west with a northern border of West 35th Street, and a southern border of Lake Austin Boulevard.

The Tarrytown neighborhood began to take shape in 1915 when the land was originally subdivided from the 365-acre Woodlawn estate. Tarrytown can best be described as quiet, sophisticated, and affluent.

The array of homes found in Tarrytown is just as diverse as Austin itself, with Tudors, cottages, and virtually everything in between.

For years, Tarrytown has been one of the most desirable communities in Austin, in part because of its close proximity to the downtown district and easy access to Lake Austin.

Residents are within walking distance of several parks, including Tarrytown Neighborhood Park. They can also visit Lookout Point, which is located within the Mayfield Park and Nature Preserve.

In addition to providing easy access to Austin's natural beauty, Tarrytown also offers residents an abundance of dining options. The neighborhood is home to casual eateries, unique restaurants, and fine dining experiences.

A fan favorite is FOOD! FOOD!, an artsy sandwich shop that also offers a few specialty takeout entrees. The Dig Pub is another wildly popular eatery near Tarrytown. This archaeology-themed pub is actually located in Cedar Park, but Tarrytown residents can access it via a short car ride.

Those interested in soaking up the Texas sun can visit the Colorado River, Lake Austin, and Lake Travis — the latter is located just outside the city and is one of the largest lakes in the state.
